Corn and Hobby
Show Ends Here
On Saturday

Elba Carson, of near New Martinsburg, former secretary-treasurer of the Fayette County Seed Improvement Association for many years was elected president of the association Saturday afternoon.

Members of the association held their annual meeting at the Armory near the conclusion of the corn and hobby show, and selected officers.

Carson succeeds Paul Smith, who moved to near Marysville last year.

Robert Cannon was re-elected vice-president; Robert Case was re-elected secretary-treasurer; and Irvin Yeoman was named assistant secretary.

The outgoing president was invited to exhibit in the corn shows here. Case was commended for his good work.

Other matters pertaining to the organization and corn shows were discussed at the meeting.

The corn and hobby shows came to an end at 4 P. M. Saturday, and within 30 minutes after the work of removing exhibits was started, the tables were practically bare and were being dismantled and removed to the various places from which they had been obtained.

Many persons visited the shows Friday and some arrived after the shows were over, including some out-of-county residents.

Both shows were described by officers as very successful.

Sheriff Finds Two Who Saw Mrs. Braddock

Sheriff Orland Hays and Mrs. Hays returned Sunday from a 10-day trip to Florida, during which they found three Fayette County women who told him they saw Mrs. Minerva Braddock in Florida in recent weeks.

Sheriff Hays brought with him Leland McCune, Jr., who was indicted here in April, 1950, on a charge of non-support and who had been sought by Sheriff Hays since the indictment was returned.

Sheriff and Mrs. Hays talked with three Fayette County women who know Mrs. Braddock personally and who said they had seen her in Florida comparatively recently.

The names of the women were not given, but all were positive of their identification. She was seen in Hollywood, West Palm Beach and St. Louis. Sheriff Hays was told.

Mrs. Braddock vanished from her home here Dec. 17, and was last seen in Cleveland Dec. 18, when she abandoned her car there.

Relatives and friends have heard nothing of her since that time, reports indicate.

lighten the load on No. 12 and 13 circuits.

"That circuit No. 27 which takes care of the standard lights be taken out of the 15 amp. circuit panel and that a form 30 amp. service panel be provided exclusively for the said standard lights, this form 30 service to be taken from the heavy feeders within the 15 amp. branch circuit panel.

"That metal wastepaper cans be provided in all offices where same are not already provided. Also metal cans with metal covers should be provided for the storage of all paper which is collected from the various waste paper cans.

Electrical System Checked

"The inspection of the electric system was made by a highly competent engineer of The Dayton Power and Light Co. and myself, using an underwriter approved load meter which gave us an accurate check on the main service as well as all branch circuits.

"We found the maximum load on the main service while operations were at about a peak were well within the limits of the 200 amp. service. In fact many more circuits can be added and a much greater load can be carried before reaching the full limit of the present installation.

"I find the building in general well kept as far as can be, under the present condition, and feel that if the above recommendations are carried out that a much safer building can be maintained.

"Trusting that you, as competent and fair minded officials, will see fit to take immediate steps to eliminate as many things as possible which will cause a fire within this building, and that you will cooperate to the fullest extent in helping to make the building for fire safe, I am

Very truly yours,
GEORGE P. HALL,
Chief of the Fire Department."

One car was driven by Raymond Nordquist of Alliance, and the other by Phyllis Urbana of Columbus.

Miss Urbana said she was blinded by the lights of Nordquist's car.

tains into Terrain already abandoned by the Reds. Generally it was a movement of straightening the Allied line.

An American patrol went inside Hoengsong. It came under intense rifle fire from Communists on the ridges north and northwest of the town.

The Communists appeared to be preparing to meet what they expect may be an Allied attempt to flank Seoul. Air observers reported from 10,000 to 12,000 concealed foxholes -- "most of them occupied" -- in a radius of four miles just north of the Han and eight miles east of Seoul.

New Red tanks were reported spotted around Seoul, concealed in houses and the woods.

Allied commanders interpreted the Red built-up as definite preparations to put up an all-out fight for the former capital, if the Allies choose to move against it.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, Feb. 27—(AP)—This should be a busy and important week in Washington.

These were the important things expected today.

Announcement of the government's formula for raising wages.

Supreme court decisions on some of the biggest Communist cases.

Testimony by Republican senators Taft of Ohio and Wherry of Nebraska on the question of sending troops to Europe.

Start of the trial of Oscar Collazo, 37-year-old Puerto Rican, for trying to kill President Truman last Nov. 1.

Tomorrow former President Herbert Hoover is expected to testify before Congress on the troops-for-Europe issue.

And tomorrow the Senate is due to start debate on the drafting of 18-year-olds.

That's quite a budget of events for one week, a strong contrast with the dull doings of last week which was a kind of mild interval between storms.

Last week Eric Johnston, economic stabilizer, and Charles Wilson, boss of mobilization, had closed-door sessions with labor leaders.

The latter were sore at the kind of wage formula—rules for letting workers get pay increases under the freeze—the government had worked out.

Johnston and Wilson listened. Whether they bowed or bent to labor's demands will be known when the formula is made public, officially.

Johnston, it was believed, would announce the formula today or tomorrow at the latest.

The supreme court returned to the bench today after six weeks of studying cases, some already argued, some asking for court review.

Main interest is on the possibility the court will give a decision in the case of the 11 Communist party leaders convicted Oct. 14, 1949 after a 9-month trial of conspiracy to teach overthrow of the government.

Last Dec. 4 the court heard arguments on the appeal of the 11, who received sentences ranging from 3 to 5 years. They were convicted under the Smith Act, passed in 1940. They argue the act is unconstitutional.

Mr. Hoover, expected to testify tomorrow before the Senate foreign relations and armed services committees on sending U. S. troops to Europe, headed the opposition.

He was against sending any troops until Europe had erected a "sure dam" against Russian attack, a position which his critics say means this: not sending any troops until Europe is so strong it needs none.

Taft, who has been pretty chilly about sending troops abroad, says he'll offer a resolution to delay sending any troops until Europe has made specific guarantees on the size of the army Europe will raise.

The three men, Wherry and Taft today and Hoover tomorrow, will have a platform for stating their case but this time, since they'll appear before two Senate committees, they'll have to defend their position.

When the Senate finally votes on the problem of drafting 18-year-olds, after the debate which opens Tuesday, only one side of the story will be told.

There can't be any law on this problem until the House also votes, and that won't be done for some while yet.

Collazo, a Puerto Rican revolutionary, goes on trial for his life for his attempt to shoot his way into the Blair House and killed President Truman last November.

In that wild shooting spree two men were killed: Collazo's companion, Griselio Torresola, and one of the president's guards.

Government Takes an Interest In Development of Flymobile

By JAMES J. STREBIG
WASHINGTON — The government is interested in a machine you can fly through the air and drive down the street.

To help test two ideas for such "airautos" or "roadplanes," the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) has offered to rent 10 of each type for six months for use by field agents. The planes would be distributed among CAA's nine geographic regions and get the benefit of operation under a variety of climates and terrain conditions.

One of the "flymobiles" was built at Danbury, Conn., by Robert Edison Fulton, Jr. Over a period of years he has flown his "Airphibian" more than 1,000 hours and driven it thousands of miles.

The other is the "Aerocar" built by Moulton Taylor, president of Aerocar, Inc., Longview, Wash. It first flew last February and has been tested extensively on the ground and in the air.

Both types have the same basic plan — a single power plant for driving or flying, with removable wings and tail section — but they differ greatly in detail.

The "Aerocar" is a pusher plane. That is, the propeller is at the tail. For ground use, the wings and tail section fold together and can be hooked to the rear of the car and hauled like a trailer. This would permit a pilot to land at one airport, drive into the city and take off from a different airport.

The Fulton "Airphibian" is a tractor airplane. The propeller is in front. For ground use the wing tail section and propeller are removed for storage at the airport while the automobile is driven away.

Either type carries two persons. Air speeds are around 100 miles an hour and ground speeds are comparable to those of other light automobiles.

The CAA is an agency of the Commerce Department charged with enforcement, operational and promotional aspects of civil aviation. This includes development and testing of new devices for flying.

Occasionally the CAA promotes a special purpose design by paying the cost to a private contractor. A recent example is a $50,000 contract under which Texas A. and M. College built a plane intended to meet the special needs of agricultural flying such as crop dusting, spraying and seedling. The plane now is being flight tested.

The offer to rent the Fulton and Taylor machines, providing a cost figure can be agreed upon, fits into the CAA's long-time effort to five private flying greater utility. Studies have shown that lack of usefulness, resulting from the inconvenience of airport locations and weather delays, ranks with cost as a major cause of discouraging airplane ownership.

BROTHER HELD

One Girl Assigned to Air Base As Radio Mechanic a Sensation

GRENIER AIR FORCE BASE, N. H., Feb. 26—(AP)—A "slipup," the colonel said, sent the lone Waf for duty at Manchester's all male air base Feb. 14.

But it was a Valentine dream for pretty 20-year-old Pfc. Stella Banouveris from Racine, Wis.

"The only girl on the base—wow!" was her reaction.

The first hint the base had was when she showed up for work with the other radio mechanics.

She had 14 months radio training and soon showed she could tackle a repair job with the best of them.

When she first appeared in the mess hall, there was a swelling murmur: "Gee, a woman in the chow line!"

Now they politely wave her to the head of the line.

Stella had no idea when she left

New York's Mitchell Air Force Base that there was no Waf detachment at Grenier.

"I just didn't know I was going to be the colonel's problem child," she said with a chuckle.

Lt. Col. Lavern A. Howard, commanding officer of the 133rd fighter squadron, was almost shaken out of his customary serenity when Stella reported for duty.

"A slipup somewhere along the line," he explained.

He was going to open up one of the former Wac barracks for Stella. But rather than have her rattling around in lonely splendor, he made arrangements to have her quartered off the field.

The lone Waf has enjoyed her unimpaired quarters at the home of Mrs. Arthur A. Dickey, wife of an army sergeant now in Korea.

In spite of what is practically her own personal staidness of 600 or more, Stella insisted she has not dated a single Grenier buddy.

She claimed her only local beau is Jimmy Dickey, 7, her landlady's son.

Stella affirms she is true to her boy friend at Scott Air Force Base, Ill. But she won't tell his name.

Seven letters from him caught up with her today.

A box of Valentine candy from her fiancé outlasted Stella's assignment at Grenier.

She's packing up again today to move to Otis Air Force Base, Cape Cod, Mass.

"I understand there are Wafs galore there," she sighed.

The Moral Factor Must Not Be Forgotten

To a chaplain who administered the final sacrament an hour before her execution at the hands of the Germans in Brussels in 1915, the British nurse Edith Cavell made the remark "patriotism is not enough". The truth of this observation the world must learn anew.

Americans must learn it because this is a world in which moral and spiritual values are under grave challenge.

Of those values, patriotism may seem a part, or not a part. In the name of patriotism, Mussolini conquered Ethiopia and Hitler conquered most of Europe.

Patriotism without moral and spiritual roots can be a noxious growth. That thought without doubt animated the 100-page statement on "moral and spiritual values in public schools" issued at the annual convention of the American Association of School Administrators, which 14,000 teachers, superintendents, college officers and other educators attended. The report warned there could be no social survival without a moral order.

No improvements in government structure, no statutes and ordinances, however elevated their aims, could produce a good and secure social order if personal integrity, honesty and self-discipline were lacking, it was found.

The social effect of recent wars has without doubt been more severe than most persons imagine. They see the trees of their individual environment and fail to see the forest which composes the atmosphere of the national scene. The increasing amount of aimless leisure, the changing patterns of home life and the current international tensions, all represent challenges to moral strength.

It should be the task of all educators to increase his awareness of the moral and spiritual values on which civilization rests and upon which its survival depends.

The national defense can rest upon no stronger foundation.

The RFC Mess

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation came into being on January 22, 1932, as a device for making federal loans available to financial institutions and other enterprises in distress because of the depression. Almost two decades after its origin, in a land never more prosperous, the RFC survives. That's how it is with government corporations which differ not at all from other government agencies in never giving up.

Whether the RFC has outlived its usefulness is one of the questions the Senate banking subcommittee's investigation will want to determine. Charges of political influence, favoritism and poor management, affecting a government corporation which lends millions, ought to receive serious attention at the White House. That failing, it is the obligation of Senator Fulbright's committee to prevent consideration of the RFC nominations until all the facts are brought to light.

The 1951 pig crop is expected to be larger. Road hogs also will probably be as numerous as usual.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Interested in a television set for 97 cents?
A rebuilt typewriter for $3?
A pair of women's shoes for a nickel?

This is the town for you, then. At least it was a couple of days ago. I'd have told you about it sooner except that my feet got stepped on.

(No, Junior, the man doesn't write with his feet. It just sounds that way sometimes.)
What happened to my feet, and to the high cost of living, was a strange local institution known as the Washington's birthday sales.

Don't confuse this with quiet little events such as New Year's Eve in Times Square. They're in a class by themselves. They're a mob scene, an all-night vigil, a store manager's nightmare, a housewife's dream.
Also, they're painfully hard on the feet.

On Washington's birthday, in this town, you can buy men's suits for $5, women's dresses (list price $10.98) for 99 cents, nylon stockings for 49 cents, side-arm chairs for 99 cents—oh, golly, they almost pay you to cut the stuff away.

There are a couple of jokers in the pack, however:
1--A lot of these cut-to-the-bone items are frankly and unashamedly junk. The ads say so. The store manager will tell you so. This doesn't stop people from buying, though. A bargain is a bargain, even if it falls apart before you get it home. Ask any woman.

2--The most spectacular bargains—8 electric refrigerators, for instance—come in small quantities. A store will offer only three or four of them. To get one, you have to stand (or sit or lie down) in line for hours. This year's champ was a man who stuck it out 22 hours. He got a television set for $9.90.

This has been going on annually for about 30 years but I hadn't heard about it before and nothing would do but I had to take a look.

Oh, brother!
The bus was crowded, the streets were crowded. It was a holiday (or so the calendar said) and yet there hadn't been so many people around town since Franklin Roosevelt's second inauguration. You couldn't get in some of the stores. The doors had been barred and the cops were holding the crowds back.

My wife, who had come along to provide the "woman's angle," took a limited view of the whole enterprise.

"Let's go home," she said. "We'll be trampled to death."

"No," I said. "I want to get inside one of these stores and -- ouch!"

A large, befurred woman, sailing past with an armload of packages and wild gleam in her eye, trod neatly and heavily on my left foot. It hurt.

"See what I mean?" my wife said. "These people are crazy today. It's not safe to be out." I was beginning to agree with her, but the door of an F Street novelty shop burst open just then and I saw my chance. I shouldered my way inside.

"Watch it, bud," said a man coming out.
I tried to watch it but he was too quick. He nailed me squarely with a size 12 brogan on three toes of the right foot.

Hobbling and moaning, I joined my wife. She was three doors down the street by that time and there was a strange, fixed look in her eye.

"In here," she breathed. "Ray-on slippers for 27 cents. Wait for me!"
I didn't, though. I limped to a taxi.

Nothing serious, the doctor said. He strapped on some adhesive tape, told me to keep off my feet for a day or so, and charged me $4.
But as I said: There are some great bargains in this town on Washington's birthday. If you're in town next Washington's birthday, look me up, you'll know me. I'll be the fellow on stilts.

Diet and Health Early Care Needed For this Ailment

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN
Some diseases are serious in themselves; others are dreaded because of what they may lead to. Among the latter is a disorder known as polyposis of the colon, in which there is an overgrowth of the tissues of the large bowel. Unless this disease is recognized early and adequately treated, it almost always develops into malignant or cancerous growths.

Though the condition is apparently inherited, it does not appear to begin until adolescence. Symptoms seldom appear in those under 20 and may not develop before 40.

The overgrowth is not confined to one spot, but is scattered throughout the large bowel. Its possibility must always be suspected when there are such symptoms as frequent bowel movements containing pus and blood, and when there is a marked loss of weight and strength. During the annual health audit which every person should have, a search may well be made for the presence of polyps in the bowel.

May Be Detected
If the condition is present, it may be detected by examining the bowel through an instrument known as the sigmoidoscope which consists of a tube and a light. If the polyposis is seen in this way, X-ray examination is carried out which will show how widespread the condition may be.

Since this condition is a severe one and dangerous if neglected, it requires active treatment. The treatment which seems to find most favor is burning off of the polyps in the rectum by the process known as fulguration. Then the entire colon is removed by operation. If the operation is carried out promptly the person's prospects of remaining permanently well are greatly increased.

Of course, there are many causes for frequent bowel movements with mucus and blood other than multiple polyposis. The same symptoms may occur in ulcerative colitis. Fortunately, this disorder is not a too frequent one, and with prompt diagnosis and treatment its dangerous effects may be ward off.

BERKELEY.—(AP)—Excavation of a mass graveyard 200 feet under ground was reported recently by anthropologists of the University of California. The subterranean cavern was uncovered in a large, limestone cavern in a region once inhabited by the Sierra Miwok Indians.

Vast quantities of human bones were found at the bottom of the deep, vertical shaft. The anthropologists believe the corpses were probably thrown into the almost inaccessible shaft from a ledge in the upper part of the cave.

Letters To Editor

Washington C. H., O.
Feb. 26, 1951

Editor
Record-Herald
Dear Sir:
The cause of conservation is rapidly gaining the attention of our people, especially those in the city. Locally much interest has been created by the recently appointed agronomy committee sponsored by our local extension department and recent meetings were well attended.

This committee in co-operation with the extension department and the Fayette County Soil Conservation District are now planning a Soil Conservation Field Day, this August, which will be something that has never been attempted before and will be an outstanding event bringing in people from all over this section of Ohio.

Our local chapter Fayette Friends of the Land will put on a "Friends of the Land Program" for the Buckeye Garden Club, Bloomingburg, Ohio this March 19th, where the public will be invited. Dr. Jonathan Forman, vice president of the National Friends of the Land will make the address which will be another outstanding event, as Dr. Forman has a national reputation on matters concerning the conservation of soil, water and man.

The first part of April John A. Slipper extension soil conservationist, with a national reputation, will address the annual meeting of Fayette Friends of the Land. The public will also be invited to this meeting.

What we of the Friends of the Land are trying to do, is to get the public conscious out of rapidly dwindling natural resources, especially those of soil, water and man. We do not try to take the place of any existing societies but lend our aid in all matters of conservation. We also are keenly interested in promoting good relations between the city people and the farmers and we believe the city people are becoming more interested in conservation. Mr. John W. Sims executive secretary Ohio Farm Bureau recently wrote, "relationships between farmers and the city people have drifted to an all-time low." Certainly this does not apply to Fayette County.

In short our program is "Friends of the Land has as its major objective the integration, in the minds of all our people, of the all over picture of conservation, restoration and protection of our vital soil. It is trying to make all of our industrialists, merchants, and professional men realize that the basis of our civilization, the level of our economies stability, the health of our people, lies in the abundance of the natural resources of the United States of America. Of these resources the basic one is the soil with water."

Fayette Friends of the Land

Don't Go Through Life Not Sick Enough To Stop Working; Not Well Enough To Work Well

Many people go through life not sick enough to stop working, but not well enough to work well. Some folks do something about it, others just talk about it.

Mrs. J. H. Digby, vice would be . . . take HADACOL, for Mrs. Digby found that by taking HADACOL, she was giving her system Vitamins B1, B2, Nicotin and Iron which it lacked. And taking HADACOL helped her overcome those deficiency-caused ailments; she keeps right on taking it now that she is feeling good, to keep those troubles away.

Here is what Mrs. Digby says: "I am 51 years old and I have suffered from stomach distress for some time with bloating and gas. I was weak and nervous and I couldn't sleep at night. I read in the paper about HADACOL. I started taking it and I have taken five large bottles. It helped me from the start and now I feel fine. I wish everybody that had stomach distress would try HADACOL. I can truthfully say it is fine."

Institute of Pacific Relations

The files which were taken from Edward C. Carter's barn in Lee, Massachusetts, by the McCarran committee will lead to a complete study of the institute of Pacific relations and its activities.

The institute was organized by the Young's Christian Association as an effort to bring together the peoples of the Pacific countries, holding its first conference in Honolulu, July 1, 1925.

Its Pacific council consisted of Ray Lyman Wilbur, United States, chairman; Junnosuke Inouye, Japan, first vice-chairman; David Z. T. Yui, China, second vice-chairman; Frank C. Atherton, Hawaii, treasurer; Sir Mungo MacCallum, Australia; Sir Robert Borden, Canada; Sir James Allen, New Zealand.

No organization could have had a better start. Actually, American businessmen in Honolulu were anxious for this organization to prosper, as they hoped it would bring large numbers of distinguished tourists to Hawaii. At first, they put up most of the money for it. Subsequently, the Rockefeller and other foundations came through with sizable grants.

At the head of the organization was J. Merle Davis, a Y. M. C. A. general secretary. One of his tasks was to organize national councils in each of the Pacific countries. The 1925 conference was attended delegates from Australia, Canada, China, Korea, Japan, New Zealand, Philippines, and United States. One of the principal Pacific countries, Soviet Russia, was absent.

The 1927 conference was held at Honolulu in July. The following were represented: Australia, Canada, China, Great Britain, Hawaii, Japan, Korea, New Zealand, Philippines, United States, League of Nations, International Labor Office, Soviet Russia was not present.

A full list of the 137 delegates to this conference cannot be given here, but some of the men present were among the most important in their countries. For instance, the British sent Sir Frederick Whyte, former president of the National Indian Legislative Assembly; Malcolm MacDonald, son of the prime minister and afterwards himself a member of the British cabinet.

The American delegation was headed by Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, with whom was associated a distinguished group of men and women, several being presidents and professors of universities. E. C. Carter was honorary secretary of the American group.

The 1927 conference was a great success. The speeches were important, expressing authoritative statements of policy. The papers were interesting and well prepared. The institute was an established organization. National councils had been organized in Australia, Canada, China, Japan, New Zealand, and the United States. C. C. Carter was chosen to be the secretary and driving force of the American council, which under his leadership developed into the pivotal group of the institute. It was not long before New York overshadowed Honolulu.

The 1929 conference of the institute of Pacific relations was held in Kyoto, Japan, from October 28 to November 9. This may in some respects be regarded as the end of the organization; the institute was already a powerful agency. The American delegation was headed by Jerome D. Greene of Lee, Higginson and Company, chairman, and E. C. Carter, secretary. Carter's assistants were John D. Rockefeller III, Miss Catherine Porter and Hobart N. Young. The Rockefeller Foundation was represented by Roger S. Greene; the Carnegie Corporation by Frederick P. Keppel. The British delegation was headed by Viscount Halifax, former lord chancellor, as chairman.

This was a big affair of top-notch personalities. I shall discuss this Kyoto conference in subsequent articles, but here I wish to include a statement of purposes of the institute of Pacific relations as prepared for this conference by its secretary, J. Merle Davis:
". . . The international machinery by which nations have been dealing with one another since the beginning of history has evolved on the assumption of the inevitability of war; of the necessity of force as the means for adjusting their differences. From this has sprung the school of secret diplomacy with its inevitable code of reticence and the withholding of facts. This technique to be effective requires the dominance of the few: the acquiescence and ignorance of the many. Since 1918, however, a different international technique has appeared. This is born of a new vision of human relations, based upon the concept of the rights of the weak, international interdependence, the power of facts, the intelligence of the people and their participation in government. The institute of Pacific relations has emerged as a part of the mechanism which the era provides for meeting its new requirements."

The jury deliberated nearly three hours receiving the case in late afternoon. When its verdict was announced, Thompson remained calm and unmoved. But the girl, now 14, broke down and was sobbing hysterically from the court room.

Profits Soaring Reports Reveal

Last Year's Business
Showed Big Increase

By SAM DAWSON
NEW YORK, Feb. 26—(AP)—The golden measure of the nation's prosperity—with business profits running one-third higher in 1950 than in 1949—is revealed today in the swelling flood of annual corporation reports.

Profits after taxes of a sampling of 72 companies prominent in many fields, who are among the first to report on their 1950 business, average 33.5 per cent above 1949.

Individually, the company earnings range in size from less than $3 million to more than $300 million. By industries, the change from the previous year runs from a combined gain of 88 per cent by three rubber companies to a drop of four per cent by five food handlers.

The early returns in most cases reflect the huge swelling of dollar sales volume (reported in inflated dollars), rather than much change in the profit return on each sales dollar—that is, the company may be making no more profit on each item it sells you than it did a year ago. It's just selling more of them at higher prices. And, also, the company's return on the money it has invested may still be far from impressive.

The earnings statements reflect highly-valued inventories—always subject to revaluation, and the inflation bubble burst. They show the mark of the higher taxes—profits would have been even higher otherwise—but taxes didn't cut them back as much as some expected. The big tax bite lies ahead, since this year the higher rates are in effect all 12 months instead of just the last six, as in 1950.

Earnings in Millions
Together, the 72 companies report total earnings for 1950 of $2,698,438,866, against 1949's $2,020,274,098. The list of manufacturing, utility, retail, communications and financing companies is only a sampling at best. Their returns may be only an indication, of course—many of the giants of industry are yet to report.

And, as usual, some companies didn't do as well in 1950 as they did the year before.

Rubber companies, on the basis of the first four reporting, led the earnings parade, doing 87.9 per cent better in 1950 than in 1949. Sharp price increases, and large sales partly due to scarce buying, show here.

Chemical companies are next best. Five of the leaders show earnings gained by 40.8 per cent. Eight steel companies, including the largest one, increased their profits by 36.3 per cent last year. Six oil companies—although here the largest companies are yet to be heard from—had a 34.4 per cent more profitable year.

Fifteen gas and electric utilities had more modest gains—an average of 15.5 per cent. Add two communications companies—telephone and telephone—into the utility figures and the earnings increase goes up to 36.1 per cent.

Credit Big Factor
Last year was a great one for buying on the cuff—especially the big-ticket durable goods, like autos—and the finance companies did well. Three reporting so far show an average gain of 15.5 per cent.

Four farm machinery companies increased their total earnings by 12.8 per cent in the year, reflecting the steady mechanization of American farms.

Three variety store chains had modest earnings increases of 5.5 per cent.

Five food processing and distributing companies, although their sales volume held up well, showed the mark of competition—their combined earnings were down 3.9 per cent in 1950 from 1949. This sampling is not too typical, however, as many of the largest food companies report their earnings at midyear rather than at year's end. However, the decline in earnings reported by the five may add to the argument of food handlers that they are not to blame for the higher price you pay to eat.

Other companies with striking gains in earnings in 1950, compared with 1949, include some in these fields: aircraft, carpets, woolen mills, other textiles, paper, and paper products. Some glass companies did a lot better last year, and so did makers of housing materials.

But one big tobacco company reports its profits off slightly from the year before.

The peak flood of annual reports lies just ahead, insofar as the 72 sampled here are typical, American industry has apparently set itself a record high in earnings. Many companies count on production increasing this year, and many will have high gross income as a result—but when the higher taxes take effect, and controls cut back output of civilian goods, it is questionable if many will be able to equal last year's golden crop of net profits.

Camel and Jet Meet; It Was End of Camel

WITH THE FIRST MARINE DIVISION IN KOREA — (AP) — Flying his Grumman Panther along a Communist supply road in search of enemy supply vehicles, First Lieutenant Weldon Mitchell, of Laguna Beach, Calif., came across a camel loaded down with ammunition boxes.

He wheeled his plane around for a second look, then let go with a short burst from the jet's guns. When the dust settled, there wasn't enough left of the beast to make a camel's hair brush. The camel literally exploded with the ammunition on its back.

Unique Prison Has No Walls

Spiritual Freedom
Provided, Claim

By ANDY ANDERSON
RAIFORD, Fla.—A prison without walls seems to be paying off on a 15-year experiment in human rehabilitation.

It has been an attempt to help cure inmates spiritually rather than by force, to help the soul escape even though the body cannot.

All prison atmosphere possible is done away with. Every attempt is made to make the prisoner feel he or she is not so far from home-like surroundings.

The institution is Florida State Prison about 40 miles southwest of Jacksonville. It has a population fluctuating between 1,800 and 2,200. The inmates wear—as a uniform—trousers or skirt with a stripe down the side. Headgear and shirts or coats can be what ever the prisoner wishes. You can find them in anything from brilliantly striped T-shirts to leather jackets.

Fence Eliminates Wall
Instead of a wall, the prison has a triple wire fence. The center, a few feet higher than those on either side, is topped by a charged wire and stands in cement which goes down to water.

Superintendent L. F. Chapman—a huge man with rippling white hair and as gentle a voice and disposition as could be found—is responsible for the experiment.

Texas-born, he was a citrus packer and grower in DeLand and a state legislator.

Electric Wire Is Respected
"I had a hard fight to get this fence built instead of a concrete wall," Chapman said. "Now those inside can look out. The fence has torn away the mystery of what the other side looks like. Of course they respect that charged wire."

"We have some prisoners now and then who have to be disciplined. Any prison has. But we think our experiment in trying to rehabilitate prisoners by giving them this atmosphere is paying off."

"We figure it's paying off because of the small number who come back—our percentage of repeaters is far under the national average. We have very few escapes, even of trustees outside the fence. And we have no riots or strikes."

Any prisoner can talk to Chapman any time. They can stop him as he walks through the grounds, but few do. Some remove their hats. He always has a pleasant word for them.

There is an easy, informal atmosphere at the prison. Not a gun or blackjack is in sight.

The canteen, which does a $1,000 a week business, has a dozen or so tables where prisoners can entertain friends and relatives at visiting time with coffee, soft drinks and sandwiches.

The prison conducts a grade school so that illiterates may learn. It operates a huge farm. It has a sawmill, carpenter shop, machine shop, license plate stamping shop, athletic field and hospital.

At mealtime, prisoners march to and fro from the dining room in columns of twos—but if anyone is in step with another it's sheer accident.

Each Man Has Specialty

"Every man has a job to do," Chapman points out. "Many have hobbies and get a fair amount of money selling things they make. We believe in every inmate having whatever chance possible to better himself."

One prisoner, a native of Los Woodmansee Friday for a program built around "Facts About Heart Diseases" which was prepared by the Central Heart Association. It provided an interesting discussion during the meeting since the society is the sponsor of this worthy organization for Fayette County.

The report from the members on the Heart Drive has been encouraging, Mrs. Woodmansee told the members. Residents of Fayette County can well be proud of their share in the contribution in the field of heart disease, she said. She also said to date, with the aid of some high school students, 4-H and Camp Fire Girls, the auxiliary has collected $411.52.

Several committees who wish to keep their funds separate include those at Jeffersonville, Good Hope, Bloomingburg and Madison Mills. They have given splendid reports.

As chairman of the drive Mrs. Woodmansee, thanked the members who are devoting so much time to making Fayette County heart conscious and the auxiliary is grateful to the theater owners, who permitted plate collections to be taken during show intermission the week of February 14.

Attention was also called by Mrs. Woodmansee to the fact that the red plastic "heart" still stands sentinel on many counters and will be seen in the hands of Camp Fire Girls who will solicit through March 3. She also asked that all hearts and contributions be turned in the following week so that a final report can be made not later than March 10.

Peggy Ann Reichelderfer Weds Louis Morrison At Afternoon Ceremony

Mrs. Louis Morrison

Grace Methodist Church was the setting for a beautiful afternoon wedding Sunday when Miss Peggy Ann Reichelderfer daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer became the bride of Mr. Louis Morrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Morrison of Clarksburg.

Palms formed the background for tall baskets of white snapdragons and calla lilies on the altar and white tapers in seven branch candelabra shed a soft light on the wedding party.

A half hour program of nuptial music preceded the wedding at 3:30 P. M. It was presented by Mr. William Dicke of Columbus soloist and Miss Marian Christopher organist. Mr. Dicke's numbers included "Because," "All For You," "O Promise Me" and the "Lord's Prayer" at the close of the ceremony.

Miss Christopher's selections included "The Nightingale and the Rose," "Saint Saens; 'Liebestraum,' Liszt; 'Andantino,' Lemare, 'Romance,' Rubinstein and the wedding marches.

Rev. Clarence Swearingen of Circleville read the double ring service as the hands of the clock approached four.

The bride given in marriage by her father was wearing a candlelight satin gown, fashioned with a fitted bodice fastened low in the back with self covered buttons, a high round neck, deep yoke of sheer outlined with seed pearl embroidery. The long sleeves ended in points over her hands and the full skirt ended in a sweeping cathedral train. Her veil of nylon illusion was held in place by a cloche of satin which was crownless and edged with petals fashioned of seed pearls.

She carried a white prayer book topped with a single orchid surrounded with stephanotis tied with cascaded satin streamers and the single strand of pearls she wore were the gift of the groom.

Miss Rosemary Mace of Circleville was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Misses Virginia and Lois Anderson of Circleville, Miss Joan Rader of Middletown, Miss Marge Reihle of Chillicothe, Miss Dorothy Pyle and Miss Nancy Boylan of Washington C. H.

Mr. Wendell Morrison brother of the groom was best man.

Ushers were Mr. Carl Patzer of Grove City, Mr. Maynard Speakman, Mr. Don Gene Crabbe of Clarksburg, Mr. Russell Morrison of Newark, Mr. Drexel Hynes and Mr. Walter Bumgarner, Jr., of this city.

The bride's attendants were in taffeta and nylon net gowns in red shading from a deep hue to a dainty rose-red. The gowns were designed with triple net skirts accented plaited, and taffeta boleros were worn over the strapless bodices. Mitts of net and half-hats of taffeta matched their gowns and their bead bracelets were the gifts of the bride. Their flowers were white gladioli and roses in fan shaped bouquets tied with white satin ribbon.

A reception for 250 guests was

Springfield's Cagers Swamp Lions in Last Home Game of Season

The tall boys from Springfield High School had a field day on the Washington C. H. court Saturday evening as they plunked through 37 baskets and a dozen free shots to give the Lions an 86 to 46 trimming.

Springfield's Wildcats, last year's state champs, held at least a three inch height advantage with only two of their squad not topping the six foot mark. Two of their boys, Bob Myer and Crystal (Boo) Ellis topped the ruler at six feet five inches and six feet four inches.

Washington C. H.'s Lions kept it close for the first five minutes of the game, but that was all they could do. The Wildcats held a 14 to 9 first quarter lead.

The Wildcats then took off and racked up 31 more points before halftime. The Lions tried hard throughout the whole game, but they just couldn't handle the tall boys.

One place on the score books where the Lions did shine was on the free throw line where they hit all but four of the 18 charity tosses.

After the halftime 45 to 19 score, the Wildcat coach put in the second squad which seemed every bit as tall as the starters. It added 21 points to the score while the hard fighting Lions could only get eight tallies, thus making the third quarter score read 66 to 27.

The Lions almost evened the fourth quarter scoring as they hit for 19 points with the Wildcats getting one more. The 86 points made by the Springfieldians set a new scoring record for them. Their previous high was 82 points in one game this spring.

Wildcat Bill Kennon, who didn't come into the game till the second half lead the scoring honors with 21 points. Dave Sheldier of the Lions squad collected 13 for WHS.

sheep will not make you any better income than the livestock which you are now keeping. Too many folks make the mistake of jumping from one enterprise to another which looks more profitable," the county agent warned.

"Instead of this, they need to improve their pastures and meadows so that any livestock enterprise they choose will be more profitable."

College Cagers Nearing Climax

42 Games on Top For Closing Week

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Feb. 26—(AP)—All but five of Ohio's college teams put away their basketball togs after this week's games.

The Buckeye boys wrap up the campaign with a flourish, having 42 games on tap in the final act. Next week's epilog of five games scattered over three days is dominated by the "big boys"—Xavier, Dayton, Cincinnati, Bowling Green and Wilberforce State—all possibilities for post-season tournaments.

Ohio's collegians are certain to wind up with an edge over out-of-state opponents. Up to date the Bucks have won 148 and dropped 117 in interstate play, and only 22 games with foreign foes remain on the slate. The local lads have a scoring edge of 17,335 to 16,581.

Muskingum has closed out its Ohio conference drive with 12 wins in a row, but Kent State—now boasting six loop victories—has a chance for an unblemished record in the big circuit if the Flashes can get by Wooster tomorrow night.

CINCINNATI (4-1) apparently has the Mid-American Conference firmly on its brow, where it has rested ever since the league was organized, but the Bearcats have three games to play. Last week Ohio U. came up with the season's big upset, handing the Cats' and 83-74 setback. Then Ohio U. was dropped, 66-59, by Western Michigan which entertains Cincinnati in the final league game. The big game, however, comes up Thursday night as second-place Miami invades the Bearcat lair.

Findlay (7-2) makes its final bid for a share of the Mid-Ohio League laurels tonight at Bluffton. If the Oilers win, they split the title with Ashland (8-1) if the Eagles lose to Defiance Wednesday at Defiance. Otherwise Ashland takes the crown.

Wilberforce State grabbed a pair of wins last week, 90-63 over Tiffin and 80-78 over Lincoln (Mo.), to stay atop the state-wide standings with a 20-2 record. The two losses were by a total of three points. The Greene Countians have three games to play and must win two of them to finish at the peak. Muskingum, its chores completed, is second with 20-3.

Both Muskingum and Dayton moved around Cincinnati as the Bearcats skidded out of second place after the loss to Ohio U., while Findlay won three during the week to move into fifth spot.

Home Team Advantage In Basketball Admitted

CHICAGO—(AP)—The home court in basketball often has been considered a coveted advantage. The home team uses the court for practice and is familiar with the lighting, baskets, floor, etc. The home crowd gives the team a psychological advantage with vocal support. The visitors have to travel and are sometimes tired. Many other reasons also have been advanced to corroborate this theory.

In Big Ten conference games so far this season this advantage has not always held true. In fact, after 37 conference games, the home team has won 21 games and the visitors have won 16. That's a percentage of .568. Normally the percentage approximates .750 or .800.

Lions Draw Grove City For First Tournament Game Wednesday Night

Although Coach Harry Townsend and his boys were keeping their thoughts to themselves, followers of the WHS Lion cagers today were crossing their fingers and hoping they would get to play at least three games in the Class A Central District Basketball Tournament that opens Tuesday night in the Fairground coliseum in Columbus.

The Lions drew Grove City, with a 4-15 season's record, for their first game Wednesday night, the second of the tourney. If they win that one, as their staunch backers hope they will, the Lions will tangle with the winner of the Mt. Vernon (6-11) and Hamilton Township (9-6) game.

Then, if the Lions get by that one, they will run smack into Grandview (13-4), one of the tourney favorites—that is, they will unless the Grandview boys are upset in one of their first two games.

Columbus East has been tabbed "the team to beat" in the central district and Grandview is given the best chance of doing it.

DRAWINGS FOR opponents were made at Columbus Saturday. Prin. Arthur Wohlers and Coach Townsend represented Washington C. H. High School.

Play is to start each night of the tournament at 6:30 o'clock. If that timetable is followed, the Lions should be taking the floor at about 7:30 P. M. Wednesday.

The tourney, which opens Feb. 27, will not come to a close until March 10, when the district champion will be decided. The winner will go to the regional tourney and, from the regional tourneys, the winners will go back to battle for the state championship.

The Lions of WHS finished their regular schedule Saturday night with a record of 9 victories and 10 defeats, the last one on 86 to 46 setback at the hands of Springfield's state champions of last year.

The week's schedule, with won and lost records, follows:

TUESDAY—North (11-9) vs. Westerville (5-11), 6:30 P. M.; Bexley (12-6) vs. Rosary (4-14), 7:45; West (10-9) vs. Linden (6-14), 9:00.

WEDNESDAY—Hamilton Township (9-6) vs. Mt. Vernon (6-11), 6:30 P. M.; Washington C. H. (9-10) vs. Grove City (4-15), 7:45 P. M.; St. Charles (17-3) vs. Aquinas (4-16), 9:00.

THURSDAY—Central (18-2) vs. Newark (7-10), 6 P. M.; Delaware Willis (7-12) vs. Upper Arlington (9-7) 7:15; Marion Harding (7-11) vs. Worthington (10-7) 8:30 P. M.; Circleville (8-11) vs. East (18-12), 9:45.

FRIDAY—South (11-9) vs. winner of North-Westerville game, 6 P. M.; Grandview (13-4) vs. winner of St. Charles-Aquinas, 7:15; Bexley-Rosary winner vs. West-Linden winner, 8:30; Hamilton-Mt. Vernon winner vs. Washington C. H.-Grove City winner.

Motorcycle Race Is Won by Ohioan

DAYTONIA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 26—(AP)—Dick Klamfoth, of Groveport, O., can be a retired farmer at an early age if he keeps up the pace he has set the past three years in the national championship expert motorcycle race here.

Klamfoth won top $2,500 in the 200-mile race at a record 92.81 miles an hour clip yesterday. He also won in 1949 and was second last year. The previous record, set a year ago by Billy Mathews of Hamilton, Ont., was 88.55 MPH.

Klamfoth, 22-year-old farmer, edged a fellow Ohio rider by only 20 seconds. It was Bobby Hill of Columbus, O., in second place.

Epidemic of Flu Hits Boston Camp

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 26—(AP)—A siege of flu spread through the ranks of the Boston Braves today, laying low nine players, a coach and club doctor.

Manager Billy Southworth, who yesterday was forced to call off the workout despite a brilliantly sunlit day, said he planned to hold a drill today. In the meantime he was keeping his fingers crossed hoping the epidemic spread no further.

Zanesville Team Taken on by Reds

COLUMBUS, Feb. 26—(AP)—Chances are Zanesville will be back in the Ohio Indiana Baseball League, President Frank M. Colley of the Class D loop believes.

Zanesville, together with Muncie, Ind., and Portsmouth recently lost their franchises, leaving five clubs still in the league. The Cleveland Indians used Zanesville as a farm club the last two years.

Colley said he is confident the Cincinnati Reds will use Zanesville as a farm club this season. The Reds formerly operated Muncie as a farm club.

Calling Mr. Trouble

MIAMI—(AP)—There's an interesting story behind the naming of C. V. Whitney's Mr. Trouble, a leading candidate for Hialeah's $50,000 Widener horse race. After having more than 100 names turned down by the Jockey Club for the colt, Whitney was flying to a meeting which was going to prove troublesome. He picked up a magazine and the first article he spotted was titled "Mr. Trouble". The rest of the story needs no explanation.

Profit in Sheep Pointed Out by Extension Agent

"Many folks are becoming convinced there is profit in sheep, Oscar E. Share, Guernsey County agricultural extension agent, said today.

Conversations with many farmers during past months indicate a trend to more sheep. "Wool at approximately $1 per pound and lambs at $31 to $32 a hundred have convinced folks of the profit in sheep," he added.

Share warned of factors to be considered by folks re-entering the sheep business. "Sheep can be used to 'clean up' a

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

THE MIDDLE of the next week Pettipiece announced to Quint that he was going to Schlosser and on down the river, to labor in new fields. But they were not to be rid of him. He good, "I shall be returning, and your good wife has told me I may leave a part of my belongings here."

He went off, on foot, a few days later, in the scarecrow clothes in which he had come to the tavern, a carpet bag slung over one shoulder. "Is this a role he is acting—was the man on Sunday the real man?" wondered Quint as he watched him depart.

That evening, going through the kitchen after supper, he saw Rhoda sitting at the table, her head bent over a book open before her. Never in the years she had been his wife had he seen her reading a book. One of Pettipiece's, he thought instantly, for he did not recognize it as any one of the few books he owned. He had an impulse to speak, but she had given no sign of knowing he was in the room—to her he did not exist. He went on out through the door.

Jennet and Becky sat side by side on a flat rock just outside the door. Becky held a book in her hands, awkwardly, her mouth twisted in the difficulty of her concentration on it, one finger on a word, as if it might escape her. "She's learning very fast, Uncle Quint," cried Jennet. "She can read all of the smaller words!"

He was touched by the child's isny pleased look that lighted Becky's face.

And what, he asked himself, going on, would it avail poor Becky to know how to read the bigger words?

Some day, not too far off, he must figure out something for the girl's future. It was his and Rhoda's responsibility but it appeared he would have to meet it alone.

At the shipyard Erron and the two French-Canadians were working on the masts in what was ingering of the springtime daylight. "Come next week and it'll be ready to slide in," Dan told him. "Good workers," he said of the two strangers. They were stalwart, dark-faced young men. They spoke English brokenly to Erron and in a patois of their own when they talked to each other. "They know how to build a stout ship," said Dan. That, Quint knew, was all that was needed to win Dan's approval.

Dan brought out their pipes and they sat together on the step of the cabin, smoking. Quint's eyes went from the younger men at their work to the wide mouth of the creek.

"This'll make a good harbor, here," he said. "A loading wharf, the other side of the creek... I'd thought of it nearer the Rock, but it'd be more practical here where the current isn't so swift."

"I've figured you might plan something like that."

"Think we'll have any trouble raising a crew?"

"This time o' year, there're plenty looking for adventure. I'm hankering to ship on her myself. See what those big lakes on yon are like. Aye, it'd just suit me to ship along as a hand—if I were twenty years younger."

"Guess our job's here, Dan. But later, some day, we'll sail—passengers on our own ship. Yes, we'll go."

"Erron's had the notion of it ever since we laid the keel. Though, lately, come to think, he hasn't spoken of it." Dan turned a little smile toward Quint. "Guess it's that girl of yours has put other ideas in his head."

"My niece?" Quint spoke with surprise. "Erron's met her very once or twice—they've had very little talk together."

Dan chuckled. "Don't need to talk or to look at a bonny face more'n once to get those ideas. I figured it out—he's been slobbering up the flatboat and that's same as saying he's hoping for another chance to take her out in it like he did, t'other day. He's slobbering himself up, too, like he hasn't before. And he's took to reading some, evenings—borrowed a book from Widow Tobin's daughter. I haven't known him to read since he quit his schooling."

Rhoda, Becky—now Erron, Quint smiled.

Dan added, more soberly, "Tisn't likely the girl'd look at him, fine young lady that she is. But it won't hurt him to think about it—it's same as taking that sulphur and molasses for the blood."

Quint said, "She'll not be here long—her father or her brother will be coming soon to take her away. Erron can go back to his notion of sailing on the first voyage the brig makes. The experience will be good for him."

It grew dark; the younger men stopped their work, the two French-Canadians disappearing around the cabin, Erron going down to the water's edge.

"He's figurin' the best place to slide her in," said Dan. "He'll know, too." There was a great pride in Dan's voice. "Seems like the boy's got the know of all of it in his blood."

Quint said warmly, "A lad to entrust our enterprise to, when we have to leave it."

"Ain't afraid of any crow hunters bein' about?" asked Dan as Quint moved to start homeward.

Quint had put that episode out of his mind. "No, I'm not afraid. Shall we say Monday next week for the launching?" If it were as soon as that, he was thinking, Jennet might not be cheated out of her part in it.

Dan nodded. "We'll have her ready."

With the roads dry, more drivers and traders were coming to the tavern, some staying the night. They had to be fed, and Sarah's and Becky's chores doubled. But Jennet worked at some secret task in her room.

When she joined Quint to go to the launching she carried a small package in her hand. He had her horses ready and he put out his hand to help her mount. She said, "Wait," and unwrapped the package. "I've made this, Uncle Quint, for the new ship."

She held up a pennant of blue silk, a four-leaf clover embroidered on it. "It isn't as beautiful as I would like it to be, but it'll bring good luck."

The blue of it was vaguely familiar to Quint. Suddenly it came to him what it was. "Jennet, you cut into that gown."

"Why not? I shall not be wearing it here on the frontier." His feeling of betrayal struck him again. He fingered the square of silk, studying the embroidery, that she might not read that feeling on his face.

"Very lovely, my dear. I'll give orders that it flies from a mast-head on every voyage."

Relief Recipients May Be Disclosed

COLUMBIA, Tenn., Feb. 26—(AP)—Despite a federal law against it Tennessee legislators plan to make public today names of welfare relief recipients.

"We are not afraid of any repercussions from the federal social security board," said Democratic Senator Carl Hardin of Nashville.

"It would be a mistake for a federal agency to attempt punitive action against a state legislative representatives sought to give the taxpayers one how their welfare program was being operated."

At Indianapolis, the Indiana House yesterday gave a preliminary nod to a Senate-approved bill to publicize names and money payments on welfare relief rolls. Some minority Democrats objected it might cause federal relief funds to be withheld from Indiana if the bill becomes law.

BY RAY BRANDENBURG

That blank look you see on many a citizen's face these days is just a by-product of March 15... that day you fill in the form and wonder where all the money went to. Although most people pay their taxes on the painless (?) system of having a chunk taken out of their weekly stipends, there are plenty of folks who have to meet the day of the big bite with a complete accounting for the past year. It is not the most beloved date on the calendar. And it is not getting any better. "Tax" comes from the Latin verb "taxare... to touch." But tax blanks are still Greek to most of us.

The Hereford sale of Saturday Feb. 17 is past history. I don't mind telling you that when the auctioneer said sold on that $42,100 bull, I took the deepest breath of my life.

It proves again that if you have a good product, properly advertised and well displayed, people will buy it and pay what it is worth. The many fine folks from many states that we got acquainted with was certainly a pleasant experience. It's really amazing how many fine people you run across in this hectic old world of ours.

Mark Selects Leaders Here For Blood Drive

Red Cross Offers Prospective Donors Eating Suggestions

Tom Mark, chairman of the Red Cross blood program, today announced the names of several key persons who will help obtain 125 pints of blood next Thursday, when the blood mobile unit pays this city its next visit.

Ray Brandenburg has been named to have charge of organizing the industrial plants in Washington C. H. and Fayette County for obtaining donors to the blood bank.

Mrs. Robert Minshall will work with the churches and church groups while Miss Clara Story will organize the women's organizations.

With determination, leaders of the Red Cross blood program are going to try to obtain the quota this time of 125 pints or 160 donors.

The blood unit will have its headquarters set up on the second floor of the American Legion Hall from 9:45 A. M. until 3:45 P. M. Thursday.

Residents of the city who expect to donate blood are asked to call the Red Cross Chapter house on North Hinde Street to make appointments. Efforts are being made to run at least seven donors through the blood unit headquarters every fifteen minutes.

Suggestions of Donors

Donors are reminded that they can eat a moderate meal two or three hours before they donate their blood. The meal should contain such foods as fruits, vegetables (with no dressing), bread, jam or jelly, coffee or tea (with sugar only) and lean meat or poached egg. Fat foods should be avoided at least six hours before donating blood.

Here are a few general suggestions made by the Red Cross for donors:

1. Make sure food regulations are understood.
2. Persons who have diabetes or who have had active tuberculosis should bring written approval from their physician before donating.
3. Women should not donate while pregnant, nor, in general for from six to nine months after delivery.
4. Surgery--not for several months afterwards. Dental surgery--not until wounds have healed.
5. Colds--Not while there are any symptoms; if it is a transient one, wait a week; if greater, wait for a few weeks after recovery.
6. Malaria attack or recurrence--wait for two years. If the malaria history is previous to two years, the donor may be accepted.
7. Age--18 through 59 inclusive. Single minors must have written legal permission from parent or legal guardian for each donation. Married minors must have release signed by husband or wife. No release is required for members of the regular armed forces. Members of the National Guard and other reserve units, if minors, will be required to have written release signed by either parent, or if married by the other spouse.
8. Frequency--Eight weeks must elapse between donations. Only five donations are permitted during any 12-month period.

Green Township
The chairman of the rural blood bank committee, W. W. Montgomery, announces that Green Township has been the first to complete its township blood bank committee.

The chairman, James Wolfe, has announced that his two helpers are to be Mrs. Ralph Theobald and Mrs. Robert Pavey. They report over twenty blood donor cards have been signed in the township.

Other blood bank township chairmen already selected and working are as follows: Concord Township, Kenneth Bush; Jasper Township, Charles Moore; Jefferson Township, Mrs. Robert Owens; Marion Township, Mrs. Alice Cory; Paint Township, Howard Foster; Union Township, Mrs. Roger Acton; Wayne Township, Edward Davis.

Madison and Perry Township chairmen have not been selected at present. Each township is planning to have six or more blood donors report to the blood bank on Thursday.

$3,000 Budget For Field Day

Plans Take Form For County Event

The first "Soil Conservation Field Day" to be attempted in Fayette County should be one of the biggest events which will be held in the county during the year, if tentative plans materialize.

This was indicated following a meeting Saturday night of the group planning the big affair in the auditorium of the Farm Bureau building here.

Those in the group voted to hold the "Soil Conservation Field Day" on some day during the week of Aug. 12-18. Indications are that the event will be held during the first part of the week so as not to conflict with the Clark County Fair.

A budget of $3,000 was voted by those at the meeting Saturday night. A large part of the budget will be set aside for prize money, to be awarded to winners in a plowing contest, which leaders hope can be put on a district basis.

The field day will be held on one of the Alpha Farms managed by Robert Jackson.

Jackson was present at the meeting, and said the firm which owned the farm would loan a large tent for use on the field day. Several other promises of tents have been made.

To Seek Bromfield

Members of the group expressed favor with getting Louis Bromfield, owner of the famous Malabar Farm, to speak during the afternoon program at the field day. Efforts will be made to book him in the near future for the main speaking assignment.

Indications are that Gov. Frank Lausche and several radio and television farm experts will also be invited to attend and take part in the first field day ever staged in this county.

Max Allan, who has charge of the aviation committee, said he would attempt to obtain two flyers to help with some of the educational exhibits -- for instance, in planting grass seed in one of the plots from the air.

A field day will be set aside for visiting Ohio Flying Farmers to land their planes at the Alpha Farms.

Tentative plans call for the setting up of some system of splitting the proceeds of the concession sales on a percentage basis, with a certain percent going to the concessionaire and a part to the incorporated group responsible for staging the field day.

Another means of helping raise the $3,000 may be a charge which will be made on parkers at the field day events. One suggestion was made that a 25-cent charge be made for each car parked in a lot which will be set aside for this purpose. The group did not vote on either proposal.

The Old Home Town

By Stanley

Leo Fisher, who is chairman of the event, had charge of the meeting Saturday night.

The next meeting will be held at 8 P. M. March 26 (Monday night) in the Farm Bureau auditorium.

E. D. Beatty Rites Set for Wednesday

A change in plans for final rites for Elijah D. Beatty, 82, who died last week in St. Petersburg, Fla., have been announced by the family. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 P. M. Wednesday, at the Hook and Son Funeral Home in Washington C. H., and burial will take place in the Washington Cemetery.

His body will arrive by train in Cincinnati Tuesday, and will be taken to the funeral home here, where friends may call beginning Wednesday morning until time for the funeral.

Mr. Beatty, formerly of Fayette County and later of Columbus, was a postal inspector with the government for 32 years, and made the recommendation which resulted in the installation of mail boxes at all places of mail delivery.

In 1921 he was in charge of investigating the million dollar mail robbery in Toledo.

He was a member of the First Avenue Methodist Church, the Masonic Lodge of Springfield and was an alumnus of Ohio Northern University at Ada.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary W. Beatty of St. Petersburg, two daughters, Mrs. Daniel Garent of St. Petersburg, and Mrs. Gaylord S. Miller of Detroit.
